

Purpose

South Heights Christian Classes seeks to provide academically challenging courses in a positive and dynamic Christian environment that stimulate learning through individual achievement and group activities in a classroom setting.

History

South Heights Christian Classes was formed in 2002 by a group of home educators who saw a need for additional instruction in classes for their own home educated students and realized there might be a benefit for other home educating families. Some courses are more satisfactorily learned in a group setting, and other classes require specialized teacher training or experience. The tutorial instruction of classes at South Heights may assist the parent by freeing them to concentrate on teaching their students in the remaining subjects at home. South Heights exists to provide a range of core and supplemental classes to 7-12th grade home educated students.

PSEO at South Heights

South Heights is partnering with both Crown College and the University of Northwestern to offer PSEO (Postsecondary Enrollment Options) for high school juniors and seniors, so students can earn college credit right on our South Heights campus! We are offering a variety of classes on Thursdays and Fridays!
